Love in Real Life.

If a novelist ended a story the way a real life love story has ended in Providence, R. I., the woman would say, "How unnatural," Twenty years ago W. R. Smith married an 18-year-old girl. He was 53 years old at the time. They have now two grown up children and Mrs. Smith has fallen in love with a young man by the name of Alexander Estay. Mr. Smith instead of making a fuss over its talked it over with his wife and her lover. He said he was 73 years old and wanted a home; that if they were bound to love each other he would scenre a divorce, but wanted to make his house with them. They agreed and all live in the same house. The father is devoted to his children and his wife in de-

GREEN FIRECRACKER MYSTERY

Perplexes Childhood; Are Grown-Ups Able to Solve It?

And there was an intellectual problem in connection with fireerackers. Why was there one in the pack sometimes that was wrapped with green paper in-stend of red? I have puzzled over that no little, and it still remains the dark mystery it always was. What was there about it that deserved the green paper? It wasn't louder than the others; it wasn't weaker than the others, for those who said it always was a fizzer generalfred from insufficient data, as boys are wont to do. All our lives long we are jostled and elbowed by riddles we cannot solve and this is one of them.
